-On Sunday afternoon last quite a large crowd of people visited Hanscom Park, and some eight or ten families had a little picnic there. This park, even with the improvements made last year, is a most attractive and romantic spot. and is already becoming a popular resort. The territory in its vicinity is fast being settled up, and at no distant day this portion of Omaha will be one of the most desirable parts of the city for residence. There is a probability that the street railway will be laid along St. Mary's avenue to the park, even if the property-holders around the park have to do it, and run it themselves. According to the conditions of the deed of gift to the city, the sum of $4,000 is to be exp in improvements during the present summer. The work will be resumed in July. To those of our citizens who have not yet visited the park, we advise them either to take a walk or a drive out there, where an agreeable surprise awaits them. At the meeting of the City Council last evening the committee on public grounds and improvements was instructed to correspond with landscape gardeners, to obtain ornamental designs for the beautifying of the Park; and the committee was further directed to have erected two swings and a suitable stand for the accommodation of picnics and excursions.

-Gish, the undertaker, has inested $2,000 in a magnificent new hearse, which arrived here on Monday last. It was manufactured in Rochester, N. Y., by James Cunningham, and was made especially to order for Mr. Gish. It is richly ornamented with costly curtains, gold fringe and tassels, and silver railings inside and out. The Clarence front and back, as well as the silver lamps, give it an imposing appearance. It is supplied with a full set of emblems, so that it can be used for Catholic, Protestant, or society burials. There are but three that equal this in magnificence. It terday, and as the long line moved along the streets, this princely carriage for the dead, was greatly admired by all who saw it.

A Few Facts.

The orderly and quiet condition of our city is now justly a matter of congratulation. Nowhere is there less crime in a railroad and travel center the size of Omaha; nowhere is crime pursued with more persistence or with better success. are facts which appeal to the good sense of all who live here and who take pains to observe the condition

When crime was rampant here the Herald was not slow to expose it day by day, as all candid men, friends and enemies alike, will bear witness andwe make this statement of the changed situation of to-day because truth and justice demand it and not from any especial desire to please Marshal Snowden or Judge Wilbur. These officers are doing good service, and it is for the benefit of all parties that their work should be recognized. Yet in the midst of these labors the police control and management of the city is attacked with great bitterness in the BEE, in a series of articles from which a stranger might suppose that there is a sink of iniquity somewhere between Judge Wilbur and Marshal Snowden, which these gentlemen are doing their best to con-The BEE has not denied that "order and quiet" now prevail in other hearses in the United States in the city, but it did set forth certain facts which went to show was used for the first time yes- that the police business under the Marshalship of Mr. Snowden was not being carried on, in certain respects, as it should be, either by him or his policemen. Crime may be pursued with persistence and success, but it has not been pursued in the manner laid down by law.

The Herald quotes Judge Wilbur's letter, and says it knocks the bottom out of all the facts claimed by the BEE. Not at all, Mr. Her-

The Herald says: "Here rests this grave matter. Two prostitutes arraigned at Police Court and unable to pay their fines are given further time instead of being sent to jail. Afterwards they are called upon by two police of-ficers, who inform them that they must pay their fines or go to jail, and they raised the money on the spot. But they were called upon by the dreadful 'go-betweens.' If Marshal Snowden had gone himself it would have been all right. But if the BEE man had the duties of Marshal of this city to perform, and should execute them as Marshal Snowden does, he would soon find that it would not be possible to be in every place when work is to be done. Nor does the law contemplate that he shall. other charge of the BEE. Marshal Snowden makes the complaints himself, and executes all the duties of his office as far as he can. The constable fees complained of are slight, and are for work which the Marshal cannot do."

The two prostitutes referred to were not arrainged at the Police Court. The fines, and excessive ones, were collected from them at midnight by two policemen, who entered their apartments at the hour of midnight, for that purpose, and without a warrant.

Another equally irregular proceed ing was transacted a few nights ago. Some policemen, and among them constable Simpson, if we are not mistaken, obtained admittance to a "dress-making" establishment, without a warrant, and arrested the female inmates and their gentlemen visitors and took them to the courthouse, Judge Wilbur was waked up and induced to come down and settle the case at midnight. The fines were assessed and paid, and the victims of this irregular proceeding then wended their way homeward. Was this action-although the parties may have been committing an offense-regular? The employment of a constable, The BEE maintains, to do this sort of work for the Marshal, should not be tolerated. What are the Marshal and the police force intended for? Are his and their duties to be performed by a constable, who is not a city officer, but who makes his fees from the persons he arrests? This kind of business will be stopped by the passage of an ordinance introduced by Councilman Stephenson in the City Council last evening, prohibiting the collection of moneys by the policemen, and commanding the Marshal to serve

Other facts can be produced to show that the police system needs a purification in many respects. It is a fact, and the Marshal is said to be well aware of it, and if he is not he ought to be, that one of his policemen "keeps" one or more prostitutes. How many fines have they paid, and are their names on the
